

To the Commissioners at the FCC, and especially Chairman Powell:

I am concerned that further concentration of print, TV, and radio is not in the best interests of America. While it may make good business sense, letting only a handful of megacorporations control most of whatever news the public gets is a dangerous proposition, as it is that much easier to control the slant of the news to suit their purposes. It would result in something akin to state-run media in the non-free world with such tight control over news and information. Please veto any further consolidation and cross-ownership proposals.

Sincerely,

Scott Todd
